

Istanbul Workshop / Dynamics of placemaking and digitization in Europe's cities

The aim of the first workshop for WG1 in Istanbul is to develop a shared repertoire in order to launch a comparative work period and the possible circulation of strategies and practices of urban placemaking and digitization and further progress of networking. For this aim, the workshop will concentrate on bringing together the case studies of placemaking to be explored in the future of the action. In the course of two days the group will present both their individual cases and their theoretical insights to develop thematic areas.

The desired outcomes of the workshop include developing an efficient structure of communication among the participants, a strategy to collaborate on applications and calls throughout the action and to formulate ways to collaborate on advancing the case studies. The participants will also learn about the most interesting placemaking activities in Istanbul and initiate contacts with a variety of local actors.
